

Crazy-pieced blocks are a blast—they're totally easy, and a fun way to use up scraps!

1. Start by cutting out a central patch. Here, we're cutting a triangle, but any shape could work.

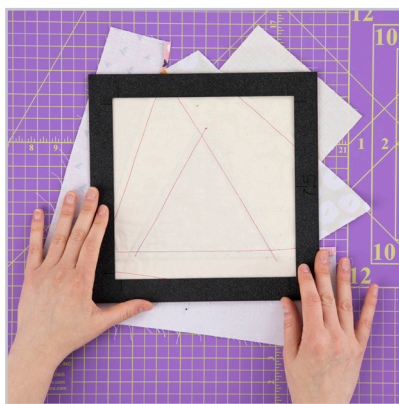

2. Lay central patch right-side up on foundation. Lay second patch right-side down, aligning it with edge of central patch. Sew through all layers, using a $\frac{1}{4}$ " seam allowance.

3. Open out second patch, and press. Add next patch along edge, then sew and press open.

4. Continue adding strips clockwise until foundation is covered, alternating sizes and shapes as desired.

5. To square up, turn unit foundation-side up. Trim excess fabric even with edges of foundation, or use fussy-cut windows to determine finished unit.

6. Keep it crazy! The end unit doesn't have to be square. If using paper foundation, tear out paper. If using leave-in foundation, you're ready to go!
